

Responding to Southern Congressmen
Who Voted To Remove “Certain statues in the United States Capitol”

James Ronald Kennedy

If timid and pacified Southerners needed more proof that we are a defeated and occupied people, then indisputable proof was recently provided by the United States House of Representatives. At 7:24 PM June 29, 2021 the House of Representatives passed HR 3005. This legislation requires that all “statues” of Southern “Civil War” heroes be removed from the United States Capitol building. The Yankee Empire is making clear its policy that henceforth, Southerners, as with all other conquered people, have no right to publicly honor their heroes. Southerners are in fact a stateless people and stateless people have no government to protect and promote their values. Vae victis—Woe to the conquered!

The Post War North/South Bargain is Broken

As part of the post war effort to restore some semblance of normalcy to our devastated and deliberately impoverished Southern homeland, the South agreed to remain loyal and patriotic to the newly created supreme federal government.¹ This new government, both state and national, was the antithesis—the exact opposite—of America’s original Constitutional Republic of Sovereign States. But Southerners accepted the reality of defeat and, instead of following the rebellious example of the Irish under English domination, Southerners never again raised the question of self-government (secession) or real States’ Rights (nullification). Southerners freely poured out their blood in every war fought by the United States since Appomattox. The South kept its part of the bargain. But the Yankee Empire now finds it politically expedient to break that bargain. The question now is: “What should be the South’s response to this broken bargain?” Timid and pacified Southerners would say that we should not respond at all. They prefer to remain silent, hiding in the closet, and hoping that no one will notice them. That of course would be the easy response—at least until it comes our turn to enter the neo-Marxist re-education camps, their Gulags, or killing-fields.

Stateless people are easy targets for cultural genocide and ultimately complete extermination via genocide or replacement by repopulation. If the conqueror does not engage in actual genocide, it is not because of some moral restraint on his part but because it is cheaper just to replace the native population with aliens who will support the empire.² All empires have done this—the Yankee Empire is no exception.³

Southern Congressmen Vote with neo-Marxist Democrats

True to their Lincoln and Radical Republican roots, some sixty-seven Republicans joined the 216 Democrats voting in favor of the bill to remove Confederate statues from the Capitol.⁴ According to the House Clerk's report, House Minority Whip Steve Scalise (LA), Murphy (NC), and Webster (FL) voted with the Democrats. In addition, there were eight Southern Republican Congressmen who abstained from voting—brave fellows indeed!

The Republican Minority Whip, Steve Scalise, represents one of the most “conservative” districts in Red State Louisiana. Yet, he had no problem in using his status to, in effect, endorse the malicious slander directed toward our Southern heritage by the likes of Antifa and BLM. As bad as the removal of Southern statues from “our” nation's capital is, the implied endorsement of the slanderous lies promoted by the politically correct, leftist mobs and media is far worse. This implied endorsement comes to us from Representatives claiming to represent conservative voters back home. Why would Southerners who were elected by American-values voters use their elected offices to provide cover for America's neo-Marxist enemies?

I do not have a complete list of Southerners who may have voted with the Democrats. There may be more than the three listed in the clerk's report.]

Counterfeit Conservatives

The United States, actually the Yankee Empire, is controlled by and for the benefit of the political ruling elite in Washington, DC, and their comrades on Wall Street, in Silicon Valley, the mainline media and the educational establishments. Both liberal Democrat and conservative Republican politicians and party bosses have a vested interest in preserving the political status quo.⁵ A conservative radio host who was very active in the Tea Party movement told me that the great mistake Tea Party folks made was putting their movement and faith in the hands of “good” conservative politicians. Too often counterfeit conservatives will use grassroots conservatives to get elected but then abandon us once they get in office. As one Southern Congressman noted, “To get elected you talk conservative down home, and then vote with the liberal majority once you get to Washington.” The political status quo provides elected officials and the Deep State bureaucracy with unending power, perks, and privileges—a politician’s first and primary aim is to preserve the political status quo. They are no different in principle than the Vichymen in France or the Quislings in Norway who were more than willing to work with the status quo government imposed upon their conquered nations by Nazi Germany. They (Vichymen and Quislings) betrayed their native country in exchange for enjoying the benefits offered by the political status quo. “After all,” they claimed, “someone has to run the government.” What was true for Vichymen and Quislings during World War II is also true for modern day counterfeit conservatives—our modern-day Scallywags.

Recognizing the Brave Who Vote No

A number of Southern and Northern Congressmen voted against the bill to remove Southern statues. These brave individuals should receive letters and e-mails from every Southern heritage supporter. These brave elected officials need to know that there are more than just a few of us back home who are watching and taking note. Never miss an opportunity to complement an elected official who takes a stand against the neo-Marxist mobs in the street and the media.

Betrayal Deserves Punishment

It is unfortunate that in America's current political establishment a politician's primary goal is to gain office and then retain that office. Under this system of government, a politician will bend to whatever pressure group the politician thinks will offer him the best chance of gaining or retaining their elected office. The leftist mainline media, leftist street mobs, such as Antifa and BLM, and the left-leaning bureaucrats in the Deep State can bring tremendous pressure on politicians. A crafty politician can avoid this leftist pressure by "going along" with these groups. This is the reaction of counterfeit conservatives in Washington, DC. This will continue until "we the people" take audacious steps to bring pressure on "our" representatives.

Is it better for "we the people" to have a politician that loves us or one that fears us? By "fear us" I mean he understands that if he betrays our interests, we will bring a world of political hurt on him back home among the voters he must have to win the next election. It would be nice if our elected officials "loved" our "down home" American and Southern values. But never forget that individuals love us at their own volition but they fear us at our volition. At this late stage in America's political history, "we the people" cannot afford to pin our liberty, rights and freedom on the hope that an elected representative will love us. We must be in a position to make an example of an elected representative who "stabs us in the back."

Making An Example Out of A Bad Actor—Punishing a Counterfeit Conservative

The recent vote by the Republican Minority Whip, Steve Scalise, as well as other so-called "conservatives" gives Southern heritage advocates an excellent opportunity to bring pressure on these politicians. Our targets are those Southern politicians who, with no thought whatsoever, voted in support of the neo-Marxist mobs that, with the help of such politicians, are actively destroying America's traditional, social, moral, historical, and conservative values.

As described in Dixie Rising-Rules for Rebels "we the people" do not have the financial resources necessary to mount a traditional challenge to every counterfeit conservative who betrays us. What we must do is engage the political ruling class in irregular political warfare.⁶ As General Forrest would say, “Hit them where they ain’t!” We must give our weak-kneed, counterfeit conservatives a fight they have never faced. We must leverage our strength at the grassroots level, while they are busy “cutting deals” with the Deep State’s ruling elite.

How should irregular political warfare warriors respond to Steve Scalise’s vote to remove Southern statues from “our” national capital? First, they would purchase 1000 names and addresses of Republican voters in each of the parishes (counties) that make up Steve Scalise’s district. Second, compose a one-page letter addressed to “Fellow Louisiana Conservatives” in which the following questions are asked “Why would Steve Scalise, who claims to be a conservative, vote in favor of a bill that in effect endorses Antifa’s and BLM’s destruction of historic Southern monuments?” “Why would a conservative use his vote to endorse the slanderous lies that have been told about the South and the true cause of the War for Southern Independence?” And third, in the letter to grassroots conservatives, suggest that perhaps “we the people” would be better off with a true conservative representing Louisiana instead of the counterfeit one who voted with the leftist Deep State elites and mobs.

This letter should also be sent to every elected official in the state who claims to be a conservative with a cover letter noting that if this is the way “conservative” elected officials treat American-values voters, then perhaps we would be better off with a known liberal enemy representing us as opposed to a counterfeit conservative who, by implication, endorses the likes of Antifa and BLM. This suggestion may be shocking to traditional conservatives but as pointed out in Dixie Rising-Rules for Rebels in a life and death battle, it is better to have a known enemy in front of you, than to have a pretended friend at your back.

By their votes it is evident that counterfeit conservatives such as Steve Scalise have thrown in with the leftist mobs, media, and Democratic political establishment that are actively engaged in their campaign of anti-South cultural genocide. But as we have said for years now, it is not just Confederate history and heritage that they are determined to destroy.⁷ The neo-Marxist mobs and their Deep State ideological allies are determined to destroy all traditional American values. It is part of an international, neo-Marxist effort to destroy Western Christian civilization.

The timid and pacified, who claim to be old and wise but who are actually tired and defeated, will refuse to engage the enemy. True, their option is safe but it is also a surrender. There is a cost for defending freedom. There is a cost when you challenge the established order—the Deep State and their corporate and political sycophants. Some are willing to pay the price—others simply do nothing while the traditional, Bible-Belt South gradually slides toward Gomorrah and a neo-Marxist hell. Simply doing nothing in the face of evil is a choice—it is an acceptance of a future in Gomorrah and a neo-Marxist hell. What choice will Southerners make?
