Progressives Rediscover Nullification & Secession

Progressives woke-up the morning of November 9th to discover that beginning early in January 2017 they would no longer control the Presidency, the House of Representatives, or the Senate. Added to that liberal wake-up alarm clock was a fire bell alarm warning that with control of the Senate a President Trump stood ready to appoint several new Supreme Court Justices—it has been a progressive court that had been the primary means of enacting and enforcing the progressive agenda. The possibility of having parts of their progressive agenda repealed now hangs, like the Sword of Damocles, over the head of liberal politicians, think-tank members, and liberal talking-heads. With no federal government to promote and protect their agenda they suddenly rediscovered the virtues

Liberal Congresswoman Zoe Lofgren (D-CA); graduate of Santa Clara University School of Law
Thinks it is time to consider secession!

of real states' rights—inclusive of the rights of nullification and secession.

Rejection or adherence to the principle of states' rights usually depends on whether a group is the majority in the Federal Empire (in such a case the group will oppose real states' rights) or if the group is a minority in the Federal Empire (then the group will understand the need to have real states' rights to protect their rights against an aggressive majority). Lincoln's Federal Empire has always been, more or less, under the control of the anti-states' rights progressive movement. Even today the progressive propaganda centers in the media, education and their crony capitalist allies still occupy a dominant position in American society. But the recent election has for now deprived them of the use of federal power to enforce their agenda. Progressives now see themselves in the minority within the Federal Empire. They now suddenly desire a means to protect their interests from, what they would consider to be, an aggressive, Trump-controlled federal government—enter the progressives' rediscovery of real states' rights! \(Continue on page 2\)

Liberal mayors in a number of “sanctuary cities” such as Los Angeles, Chicago and New York, have already announced that they will not cooperate with federal immigration efforts. The Governor of Connecticut, Dannel Malloy, announced recently that he would resist federal efforts when they conflict with state law relative to immigration, abortion, gun control, etc. This sudden progressive interest in real states’ rights also occurred in 2004 when George W. Bush won a second term as President. At that time a Yale Law School professor, Heather K. Gerken, advocated similar efforts. Professor Gerken recognized the value of real states’ right with regards to protecting minority rights declaring “where national minorities constitute local majorities,” a form of states’ rights would allow “minorities to protect themselves rather than look to courts as their source of solace.” <http://www.nytimes.com/2016/12/03/opinion/sunday/states-rights-for-the-left.html? r=0>

Liberals in California have suddenly developed a love affair with the ultimate example of real states’ rights—secession. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) recently declared “Rational people, not the fringe, are now talking about whether states could be separated from the U.S., whether we should have a Constitutional Convention.” <http://ntknetwork.com/disgruntled-democrats-want-a-constitutional-convention-to-leave-the-union/> My oh my—secession and nullification has suddenly become all the rage! But what does it mean for we the people of the South?

Southerners who desire to live in a moral society that values individual responsibility, personal accountability, limited government and low taxes tend to become overly enthusiastic when a temporary election victory occurs. (see Drunk on Victory http://www.kennedytwins.com/newsletter\_nov-dec16.pdf page 2) Never forget that even though the Republicans currently control all three branches of the Federal Empire—the South is still a captive nation within this currently “benevolent” Empire. Our interests will still be sacrificed when those interests conflict with the Empire’s interests. This sudden positive talk about nullification and secession from liberals should be used to demonstrate to our people that the concept of real states’ rights inclusive of the rights of nullification and secession are not “un-American” but are a key element within our constitutional Republic of Republics. Our people must begin to grasp the fact that our freedom and liberty cannot be protected without real states’ rights. It is our duty to promote this idea via Project 2020 whereby the people of the South will, for the first time since Appomattox, gain an opportunity to vote for the re-establishment of real states’ rights. See: http://www.kennedytwins.com/newsletter\_mar16.pdf (pages 8-10)

One of the first and a bestselling book about the South’s defense of real states’ rights. Without real states’ rights, we the people have no way to defend our rights when those rights are oppressed by an unconstitutional federal government. The South was right because liberty was right in 1776, 1861 & today!

“There must be a radical reformation in the current, overgrown, unresponsive, tax and spend federal government. If those who are in control of the government in Washington reject the demands of the people for a government more respectful of our rights, then it will be faced with the prospect of the Southern people following the lead of Lithuania as we demand the right of self-determination.” The South Was Right! 1994. ## Pellagra—A South-Only Disease

Inflicted Upon the Southern People by the Federal Empire

In Punished with Poverty we demonstrate the fact that Lincoln's Federal Empire's official war policy was to exterminate as many black and white Southerners as possible and repopulate the South with Northerners and other immigrants. Even after the shooting part of the War was over the attempt to exterminate Southerners continued via mass starvation. Pellagra is a disease caused by malnutrition. It was seen almost entirely in the post War South. The horror continued up to the late 1940s. The Empire's punishment for wanting to live in a free country.

Walmart—Pro-BLM but Anti-CSA

Too much of Corporate America has sold-out to political correctness. Whether it is Kellogg contributing to Black Lives Matter or Target bending to the will of the perversion society regarding men in female bathrooms—we are constantly faced with betrayal at the hands of those who want our business. But most recently it is Walmart—once a Southern company—but now a Globalist company! In a recent report on Breitbart it was disclosed that Walmart is now selling Black Lives Matter (BLM) clothing! This is the same Walmart that refused to sell anything that has a Confederate flag on it. President elect Trump declared this past September “I think it’s disgraceful the way they’re (BLM) being catered to by the Democrats.” It appears that Walmart is supporting the Democrats over us “irredeemable” and “deplorable” customers.

According to the Breitbart article Walmart was forced to apologize to a customer for refusing to bake a cake decorated with a Confederate flag AFTER it had baked a cake decorated with an ISIS flag! Such is the logic of our enemy.

Nullifying Tyranny: Creating Moral Communities in an Immoral Society

- The secular humanist left is at war with our Christian values but most Christians are not aware of the war or have no idea of how to fight the seemingly overwhelming power of the politically correct left.
- Nullifying Tyranny is addressed to Christians explaining why the constitutional right of state nullification is necessary if we are to win the war against the forces of political evil arrayed against us.

Why Texas Fought for Southern Independence

The officers of the United Daughters of the Confederacy had invited Uncle Seth to address the first meeting of the Texas Children of the Confederacy. Uncle Seth knew that the time when men who actually fought for Southern independence would be available to tell their story was fast drawing to an end. He feared that those who controlled the Federal Empire would soon be able to foist their views upon the children of the South. For this reason, he never missed an opportunity to tell Southern children the truth about their heritage of freedom and the struggle their fathers and grandfathers engaged in to protect that heritage—their Southern heritage.

The gathering of young people became quiet as soon as Uncle Seth was introduced. Looking into the innocent eyes of these young Texans, Uncle Seth could see the likeness of many of his Texas comrades in gray who now slept beneath the soil of distant Southern battlefields. Uncle Seth felt the burden of responsibility pressing down upon his very soul as he wondered—“How can I do justice to the memory of those who died in a vain—no, a yet to be fulfilled—effort to win freedom for these young Southerners?”

The uninterrupted silence seemed strangely out-of-place for a crowded room filled with young people—the silence created a noise in Uncle Seth’s conscious calling him to action. “I want to thank you young Texans for inviting me here to share with you some of my war stories,” Uncle Seth began. “I have no doubt that I knew and served with many of your grandfathers during the War for Southern Independence. But today I want to remind you—the future leaders of Texas—about why your state decided to join the struggle against an aggressive empire that was determined to destroy our constitutional form of government. And I may add, they were and are singularly successful in that effort—more’s the pity.”

“Many people,” Uncle Seth continued, “do not understand why Texas was so late in joining the other Gulf of Mexico states in their secession from the Federal Empire. As you all know, Texas was the last Gulf state to join the Confederacy. Sam Houston was governor of Texas at the time and he was a strong Union man—as were many, if not most, Southerners prior to the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1861. But do not let Houston’s reverence for the original constitutional union be used by Yankee school books to fool you into believing that Houston and other Southern Union men were willing to meekly submit to the newly emerging supreme federal government! In a speech given in Huntsville, Texas, November 14, 1860, Houston declared ‘So long as the Constitution is maintained by Federal authority and Texas is not made the victim of Federal wrong I am for the Union as it is.’” Uncle Seth paused to allow his audience to think about Houston’s words and then continued, “Houston and most Southerners were willing to tolerate Yankee insults as long as the insulting Yankees did not use the power of the Federal government against the rights and liberties of the people of Texas and the South. As General Robert E. Lee declared, ‘All that the South has ever desired was that the Union, as established by our forefathers, should be preserved; and that the government, as originally organized, should be administered in purity and truth.’ Unfortunately, the arrogant and self-congratulating Yankee was not willing to follow such terms of conduct. Remember the anti-Federalist Patrick Henry back in 1787 was opposed to the adoption of the Constitution not because of some error or \(continued on page 7\)

1. Radical Socialists and Communists exposed as founders of the Republican Party
2. Communists and Radical Socialists wage war upon the South
3. Karl Marx acts as Lincoln's unofficial propaganda minister in Europe
4. Adolf Hitler admired and used Lincoln's ideas to build his big government
5. Radical Socialists and Communists demonstrate their hatred for States' Rights

Lincoln's Marxists are alive and well in today's Federal Empire

Dixie Rising—Rules for Rebels > To be released March 2017 – a procedure manual for Southerners who want to do something as opposed to merely talking and complaining about the status quo. It is a handbook for a successful, non-violent, Southern revolution! The weak and timid need not purchase. As President Jefferson Davis declared, “The champions of constitutional liberty must spring to the struggle.” It is time to give the enemy a fight he has never had, an irregular struggle he thought would never occur, a resistance to his tyranny he thought would never happen!

Punished With Poverty—The Suffering South

Jefferson Davis Presidential Library—Beauvoir Biloxi, Mississippi

Kick-off book signing December 3, 2017

It was a great honor for the Kennedy Twins to have our first book signing for Punished with Poverty at the Jefferson Davis Presidential Library. The Library was decorated for Christmas (top left). A number of folks came by to get copies for Christmas and one (top right) who had seen the manuscript prior to its completion came by to get her copy. Paul Graham from Shotwell Publishing (bottom left) came in from Columbia, SC to enjoy the day and support the Kennedy Twins.

President Davis described the North's theft of Southern wealth prior to the War as "Treasures unjustly taken from the South." After the Federal Empire's unlawful invasion & occupation of the free and prosperous Confederate States of America—Davis left us with this admonition, "The champions of constitutional liberty must spring to the struggle..." Punished with Poverty makes it clear that the South is a captive nation, our poverty is intentional and our duty is calling patriots to action.

(continued from page 4) fatal flaw in the Constitution, but because of the character of the people from New England. Patrick Henry could foresee the day in which the Yankee would gain control of the limited Federal government originally created by the Sovereign States by the adoption of the Constitution. They would then turn the Federal government into an instrument of supreme, centralized, federal governmental power to be used for the benefit and enrichment of the Northern states and to the detriment and impoverishment of the Southern states.”

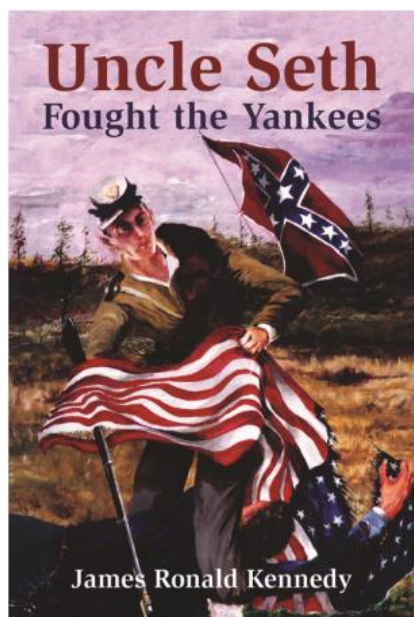

Uncle Seth shifted his weight standing behind the podium as he simultaneously shifted the emphasis of this speech. “I want to remind you that the State of Texas was preparing for secession well before the election of 1860 that brought Lincoln to power. In 1858 Governor Runnels delivered a message to the Texas legislature warning of the revolutionary and anti-constitutional actions occurring in the Kansas territory. He called for, and the legislature passed, a resolution supporting a convention of Southern States to cooperate in a mutual effort to protect our constitutional rights—your constitutional rights. In addition, the legislature appropriated $10,000 for the expense of Texas delegates to go to the proposed convention of Southern States. They even declared that if it became necessary, Texas should act alone to secure her rights. By the time Lincoln was elected it had become evident, even to the most ardent Constitutional Union men, that the Yankee was determined to destroy the Constitutional Union and replace it with a supreme federal government that the power-hungry Yankee would control. On February 1, 1861, the delegates to the Texas convention voted 167 in favor of independence with only 7 votes against.” Uncle Seth was beginning to tire—the old soldier had fought so many battles, he now tired so quickly but he refused to yield. “In closing, let me remind you,” Uncle continued with even more emphasis, “that it is your duty to continue the struggle for our freedom, our independence, our natural, God-given right to live under a government based upon the free and unfettered consent of the governed. Let me remind you that with your help, the help of your children and perhaps even your grandchildren—the South shall rise again!”

With this great post-war Southern battle cry the audience of young Texans jumped to their feet and a youthful Repel Yell burst forth. Uncle Seth was satisfied; he knew that despite efforts of Yankee textbooks and self-hating Southern teachers the dream of liberty remained alive in the Dixie. His only fear was the haunting thought of “Would it last—could it survive generations of Yankee lies?”

On the Skirmish Line With Uncle Seth

“Were the Union itself inconsistent with the public happiness, [I would recommend] Abolish the Union... The State governments may be regarded as constituent and essential parts of the federal government; whilst the latter [federal government] is nowise essential to the operation of the former [the government of the Sovereign States]. James Madison, writing in the Federalist No. 45, circa 1787.

Lincoln had no constitutional authority to wage aggressive war against Sovereign States! The resultant government is an illegitimate perversion of our original constitutionally limited Republic of Republics.

The book cover shows two soldiers

- One fighting to protect his family
- One coming as an invader

The book cover shows two flags

- One represents a people who ask to live in a country based upon the American principle of the consent of the governed
- One represents a people intent upon forcing their smaller neighbor to remain in a union that extracts tribute from the smaller nation for the benefit of the larger nation

The book cover represents two contending ideas

- Government must protect the nation's border, individual liberty and leave the people alone
- Government is supreme and may use its power to establish a national and eventually international financial, commercial and military empire for the benefit of the ruling elite and their crony capitalist allies.

Punished with Poverty now available from online bookstores, Shotwell Publications or your local bookstore. The poverty suffered by black and white Southerners is not a result of natural disaster, poor resources or lack of intelligent human resources—it was intentionally inflicted upon our people by the victorious Federal Empire.

Perfect Christmas Gift for Unreconstructed Southerners

Did you know:

- During the Colonial Era Southerners were the wealthiest people in North America
- During the Colonial and Antebellum Era Southerners both black and white had a higher standard of living than their Northern counterparts
- During the Federal Empire's invasion of the Confederacy both political and military leaders were committed to a policy of "extermination" of black and white Southerners
- The "virus of Northern racism" was intentionally spread to the South in order to facilitate the Republican policy of "divide and rule" of its conquered Southern provinces and to help Republicans maintain control of the newly created Federal Empire
- Sharecropping was acknowledged as a new form of slavery in which over 8 million Southerners were held in debt bondage—60% of sharecroppers were white
- Federal Empire owes reparations to Dixie

Dixie Rising—Rules for Rebels

(Release date March 2017)

This is a book for those who want to do more than merely talking about the destruction of our Southern heritage and who desire to live in a country where our rights are protected from an aggressive federal government by real states' rights inclusive of the rights of nullification and secession.

This book is a handbook for establishing a movement for reclaiming our right to be the master in our own home, the right of local self-government, the right to live in a nation in which the federal government protects the border and leaves we the people alone!

This book is a procedure manual for engaging in irregular political warfare. A way for the oppressed Southern minority to overwhelm an entrenched political elite.

A sequel to Punished with Poverty and the beginning of a Southern revolution for freedom!

Hate Crime Hoax—Just One of Many

A young Muslim woman reported to the New York police that Trump supporters attacked her, calling her a terrorist and tried to pull her head scarf off. After much investigating the police discovered that the entire event was false and the woman admitted to making it up. Even still the liberal media noted that it was Trump's fault because he, and by inference his supporters, made the young woman feel uncomfortable! This is just one of many "Hate Crime Hoaxes" committed by leftists in modern America. ## It Is Our Responsibility to Protect Our Country

Project 2020—A Vote for Freedom

It should be obvious by now that the liberal enemies of the South will not end their efforts to completely destroy our society. Even with a Trump victory they still are actively engaged in efforts to delegitimize Trump's victory and to position themselves to retake control of the Federal Empire. Regardless of contemporary election victories the Empire remains strong and waiting for the next strongman who will once again wage war against we the people of once sovereign states.

If we the people of the South make a determined stand in favor of restoring our original constitutionally limited Republic of Republics, it just may initiate a popular revolt across the entire nation. If not, then all that is left is for us to accept our position as docile subjects of an all-powerful Federal Empire or strike for Southern Freedom! The threat alone may be enough to awaken our neighbors to the North and West but if not—just like our Colonial ancestors, we shall be Free!

Rekilling Lincoln:

1. Lincoln's America created Obama's America
2. Lincoln, America's first Imperial (but not last) President
3. Enslaving freemen is Lincoln's greatest legacy
4. In Lincoln's America, government always trumps liberty
5. Northerners felt the heavy hand of Lincoln's tyranny
6. Lincoln's wife and friends never viewed Lincoln as a Christian

Lincoln and the Republicans created the Federal Empire—it is our duty to replace it with a government fit for a Free people!
