Nikki Haley U.N. Ambassador—The Empire Strikes Back!

President-elect Trump's appointment of Gov. Nikki Haley as part of his administration shocked and disappointed a lot of Southerners. It should have come as no surprise because this is what Empires do—they consolidate their victories by placing fellow travelers in key positions. Trump has made it clear that he thinks the Confederate flag should be removed and put in museums. Gov. Haley is an archetypical scallywag. She more than any other politician is responsible for the current wave of vicious anti-South cultural genocide. She intentionally slandered our honorable Southern heritage by implying that our Southern heritage is inherently evil and should be removed from public view. The Empire's ruling elites in the GOP demanded that Southern politicians remove all association with Southern symbols in order to placate (as in suck-up to) leftist pressure groups. Their aim is to keep Southern votes while gaining more immigrant and Black Lives Matter votes. In the Federal Empire, we the people of Dixie do not count! Just like Hillary Clinton they believe we are irredeemable and deplorable. Their actions prove their thoughts even though they will not openly declare it. In that respect, Hillary Clinton was more honest than the GOP's ruling elite.

Defeating the most liberal presidential candidate in American history was important but it does not solve the problem of a federal government that treats people of former sovereign states as subjects to their Federal Empire, conquered subjects who must obey the will of the Empire.

The solution is available—Project 2020!

Will Southern Conservatives Become Drunk on Victory?

After the defeat of Japan in World War II a Japanese officer observed that by 1941 they had become “drunk on victory.” What he meant was that numerous victories in China and against the British had convinced them that they were invincible. They set themselves up for strategic defeat when they attacked an industrial giant on December 7, 1941.

“Drunk of victory” is simply another way of describing over-confidence. Overconfidence that arises after a dramatic victory causes people to think that “we have won, we don’t need to do anything else, just keep doing the same thing we have been doing.” That plan works as long as your adversary keeps doing the same thing he has been doing. But what happens when the previously defeated adversary changes his tactics or brings new resources into the battle? If you need an answer, just look to the history of Japan’s defeat in World War II.

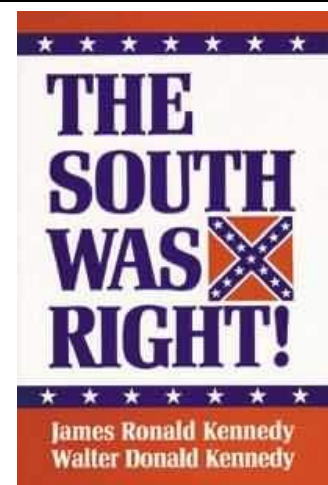

The success of the “conservative” candidate, Donald Trump, in the 2016 presidential election caused great rejoicing among Southern conservatives. Many folks think that at last we can relax and enjoy this victory over our liberal enemies. There is no doubt that a President Donald Trump certainly gives us more hope than the horrors that would have followed a tenure in office by a President Hilary Clinton. But it is still worth noting that conservatives have never followed up on a victorious election by making a fundamental change in the oppressive structure that is the current federal government—better described as the Federal Empire. Trump was successful but if we the people of the South are to be governed by a government that protects and promotes our interests, then something more than celebrating one presidential victory will be necessary. But before we can win the ultimate victory over liberalism we must make sure we are not “drunk on victory.”

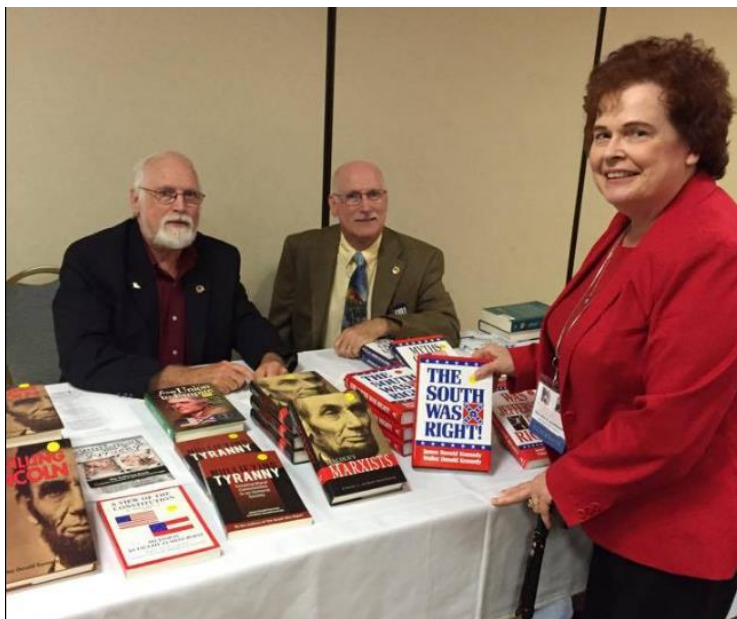

We became “drunk on victory” when Nixon won; when Reagan won; and when Newt Gingrich’s contract with America won—but in all of these “victories” did the size of the Federal Empire decrease? Did the ability of the Federal Empire to nullify the will of the people of the once sovereign states decrease? No, we “won” but we never followed-up on “our” victory!

Project 2020 provides a mechanism by which we the people of Dixie will be able to fundamentally change the current system of an abusive federal government. Trump’s victory buys us time necessary to organize and initiate a movement for true constitutional liberty protected by real states’ rights inclusive of the American rights of state nullification and secession.

One of the first and a bestselling book about the South’s defense of real states’ rights. Without real states’ rights, we the people have no way to defend our rights when those rights are oppressed by an unconstitutional federal government. The South was right because liberty was right in 1776, 1861 & today!

“There must be a radical reformation in the current, overgrown, unresponsive, tax and spend federal government. If those who are in control of the government in Washington reject the demands of the people for a government more respectful of our rights, then it will be faced with the prospect of the Southern people following the lead of Lithuania as we demand the right of self-determination.” The South Was Right! 1994. Support Your Local Police—Even if they are non-citizens

In another example of its wisdom, the Federal Empire’s Department of Justice (DOJ) is forcing police departments to hire non-citizens as police officers. In its November 21 edition, The Washington Examiner reports that the DOJ has issued fines to the Denver Sheriff’s Department for excluding non-citizens for positions within the Sheriff’s office. The Empire’s elites said that the Denver Sheriff Department, “wrongly made U.S. citizenship a job requirement.” <http://www.washingtonexaminer.com/doj-fines-denver-sheriff-dept.-for-excluding-noncitizens-when-hiring/article/2607940>

Not only will the department have to pay a fine for seeking American citizens for Denver County sheriff officers but they will have to undergo a series of training “on the immigration and Nationality Act’s anti-discrimination provisions.” The public was assured by the Empire’s elites that this action would provide adequate, well-rounded and safe policing of the community. In a press release Vanita Gupta, Deputy Assistant Attorney General, assured Americans that, “Eliminating this unlawful citizenship requirement will help ensure that the Denver Sheriff Department hires the best and most qualified individuals to protect and serve...the entire community.”

One can only wonder what the people in the Blue State of Colorado think about their Federal government now. Many people who read about this egregious action of the Federal government will no doubt congratulate themselves for having elected Trump as the new head of the Federal Empire. I am sure that some tyrannical actions like this will be rolled back by the incoming president. Nevertheless, this is not the end of the story. Remember, Trump was elected by a minority vote of the people of the United States. How can we be protected in the future when the Progressive Left once again assumes leadership of the Federal Empire? Furthermore, with Trump’s appointment of Nikki Haley to his administration, how can Southerners be sure that we will not suffer from a Trump administration? The fact is simply this: Unless we the people at the local level have the means to protect our “dearest interests” such as our liberty and property, we will never be secure from an abusive Federal Empire.

Nullifying Tyranny: Creating Moral Communities in an Immoral Society

- The secular humanist left is at war with our Christian values but most Christians are not aware of the war or have no idea of how to fight the seemingly overwhelming power of the politically correct left.
- Nullifying Tyranny is addressed to Christians explaining why the constitutional right of state nullification is necessary if we are to win the war against the forces of political evil arrayed against us.

Why Do We Have an Electoral College?

Another Example of Danger Produced by Leftist Education

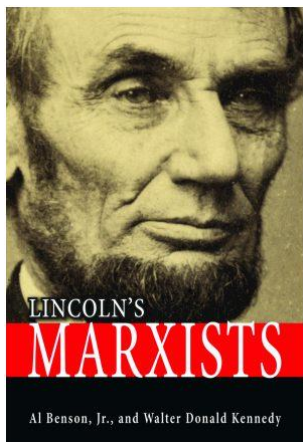

As could be predicted progressives are once again demanding that we eliminate the “out of date” Electoral College system of selecting a president. Their claim is that the Electoral College system violates the concept of democracy—and they are correct! Preventing mobocracy via pure democracy is exactly what the founding fathers intended. The Sovereign States via the Constitution established a Republic of Republics not a centralized governing authority similar to the one in London from which they, each sovereign state, had just seceded.

The most important thing to remember when discussing the Electoral College is that it was established to help maintain the authority of the Sovereign States. The parties to the Constitution are the States, not "we the people" in the aggregate, i.e., as in a nation but as "we the people" in the segregate, i.e., "we the people" within our specific sovereign state. Otherwise the states become mere provinces of a supreme central government and the people become not the masters of the federal government but the subjects of the federal government.

With the exception of the Electoral College all other barriers to a supreme federal government have been removed. Real states' rights, which would include the rights of nullification and secession, no longer exist. What passes as states' rights today is nothing more than mere states' privileges—privileges exercised only if said exercise is approved by the supreme federal government. For example, when the people of California voted to define marriage as between one man and one woman the federal government nullified the will of the people of California. This is an example of states' privileges in modern America. Compare that with what happened in 1793, just four years after the ratification of the Constitution, when the Federal Supreme Court tried to call the Sovereign State of Georgia to a suit in the U.S. Supreme Court. Georgia passed a resolution calling for the immediate hanging of any federal official who tried to execute the unconstitutional federal order (said execution done "without benefit of clergy"). A constitutional majority of the sovereign states agreed and immediately passed the Eleventh Amendment.

Progressives are determined to destroy this last vestige of the once sovereign states. What we need to be doing is to begin the effort of passing an amendment that reclaims real states' rights by acknowledging the Sovereign States right to nullify oppressive federal edicts or secede if necessary.

Project 2020 provides an opportunity to “educate” Southerners about their rights under a free government. See: http://www.kennedytwins.com/newsletter_mar16.pdf (pages 8-10)

Trump Wins—Liberals Go Crazy—Secession Back in Style!

Only days after Donald Trump's victory there were already calls for secession arising from the liberal states of California and Oregon. While such calls may be an over-reaction, it does help to make a point that has been urged from the very beginning of our original Republic of Republics.

Southern statesmen such as Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, and numerous others warned Americans about the danger of tyranny masquerading as democracy via the ballot box. This danger was referred to as the tyranny of "King Numbers" and the "dictatorship of the numerical majority."

Under the current system of supreme federalism people in the political minority have little hope of defending their interests against an aggressive federal government. We have seen this under a liberal federal government when the people of California voted to define marriage as between one man and one woman. But the federal government nullified their votes. Progressives were fine with this but now "the shoe is on the other foot."

Nullification by a sovereign state is used to protect the people of the state from the oppressive exercise of federal power. It allows time for other states to consider the logic of the state's act of nullification. It allows for the enforcement of the nullified act in all states not nullifying the federal act. The other states can join in nullifying said federal act; ignore the nullification in their state; or, pass a constitutional amendment removing any state from the union that does not abide by the federal act in question. (See Reclaiming Liberty, page 75, 191-2, explaining how this would be done.)

The ability of the people of a sovereign state to appeal to nullification and secession serves as a brake on the central government's political ambitions. Nullification and secession promotes the peaceful political association of diverse people.

Project 2020 may become appealing to more than just Southern Conservatives!

On the Skirmish Line with Uncle Seth

“Were the Union itself inconsistent with the public happiness, [I would recommend] Abolish the Union.... The State governments may be regarded as constituent and essential parts of the federal government; whilst the latter [federal] is nowise essential to the operation or organization of the former” [governments of the Sovereign States]. James Madison The Federalist No. 45, circa 1787.

One of the often-overlooked consequences of the South’s defeat in 1865 is that the original agrarian Union was converted into a commercial, economic and political empire with its economic center in New York and its political center in Washington. This symbiotic relationship has assured a constant struggle to control or protect international markets resulting ultimately in military conflict between other people and other empires.

When the pre-war Southern society was measured by the Yankee ideal it was pronounced as backward and with an economy that bordered on the primitive. But when it was measured from the Southern point-of-view, a different assessment was derived. The people of the South had developed a society in which the leisure of the landed gentry and the Plain Folk was a major quality of life; a society where tradition, honor, civility and religious impulses had not been sold out in the pursuit of profits and economic gain.

“Tell them [future generations] how we exhausted every honorable means to avoid the terrible arbitrament of war, asking only to be let alone, and tendering alliance, friendship, free navigation—everything reasonable and magnanimous—to obtain an amicable settlement. Tell them how, when driven to draw the sword, we fought the mercenaries of all the world until, overpowered by tenfold numbers, we fell; like Leonidas and his Spartans of old, fell so heroically that our defeat was more glorious than their victory,” Gen. R. E. Colston, CSA circa 1868.

“When the Constitution was adopted by the votes of States at Philadelphia [Constitutional Convention 1787], and accepted by the votes of States in popular conventions, it is safe to say that there was not a man in the country, from Washington and Hamilton, on the one side, to George Clinton and George Mason, on the other, who regarded the new system [the Federal government] as anything but an experiment entered upon by the States, and from which each and every State had the right peaceably to withdraw, a right which was very likely to be exercised.” Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Sr., Massachusetts.

“Yet in 1861 Massachusetts and the rest of the North discarded constitutional principles of limited federalism and real States Rights in order to maintain their hold on the riches they were exploiting from the South. Empires always find convenient excuses to invade and conquer people holding riches coveted by the empire’s ruling elite,” Uncle Seth.

The book cover shows two soldiers

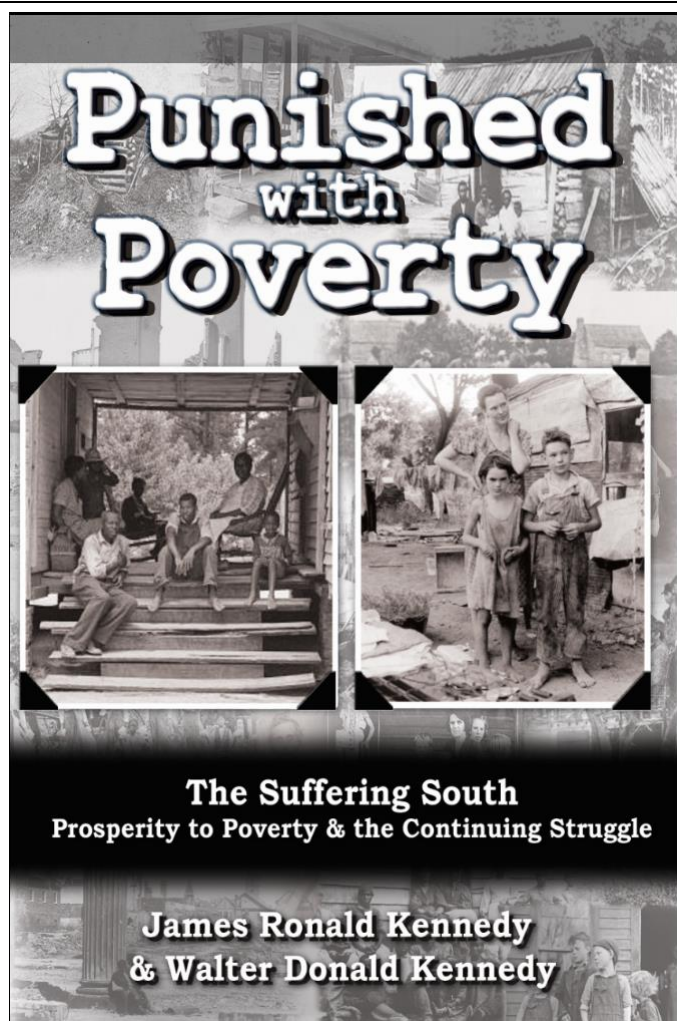

- One fighting to protect his family
- One coming as an invader

The book cover shows two flags

- One represents a people who ask to live in a country based upon the American principle of the consent of the governed
- One represents a people intent upon forcing their smaller neighbor to remain in a union that extracts tribute from the smaller nation for the benefit of the larger nation

The book cover represents two contending ideas

- Government must protect the nation’s border, individual liberty and leave the people alone
- Government is supreme and may use its power to establish a national and eventually international financial, commercial and military empire for the benefit of the ruling elite and their crony capitalist allies.

Punished with Poverty now available from online bookstores, Shotwell Publications or your local bookstore. The poverty suffered by black and white Southerners is not a result of natural disaster, poor resources or lack of intelligent human resources—it was intentionally inflicted upon our people by the victorious Federal Empire.

Perfect Christmas Gift for Unreconstructed Southerners

Did you know:

- During Colonial Era Southerners were the wealthiest people in North America
- During Colonial and Antebellum Era Southerners both black and white had a higher standard of living than their Northern counterparts
- During the Federal Empire's invasion of the Confederacy both political and military leaders were committed to a policy of "extermination" of black and white Southerners
- The "virus of Northern racism" was intentionally spread to the South in order to facilitate the Republican policy of "divide and rule" of its conquered Southern provinces and to help Republicans maintain control of the newly created Federal Empire
- Sharecropping was acknowledged as a new form of slavery in which over 8 million Southerners were held in debt bondage—60% of sharecroppers were white
- Federal Empire owes reparations to Dixie

No Praying Allowed

As pointed out in Punished with Poverty, there is a growing divide in the United States between those holding a Biblical worldview and those holding a secular-humanist worldview. This divide (so far) does not exist in the South but it surely divides the South from the rest of the Federal Empire.

The rampant attack upon Christian values by secular humanists was clearly displayed by police in Louisburg, Kansas, <http://www.wnd.com/2016/10/stunner-cops-tell-woman-to-stop-praying/> and the town council of Genoa, Michigan, which barred the movement of a Christian School to a new location on property owned by a church group. This was done after all zoning and other regulations were met. <http://www.wnd.com/2016/11/township-issues-death-sentence-for-christian-school/>

In Kansas, the local police were called to a lady's home because someone had complained that her radio was too loud. The lady, a rape survivor, became upset and began praying but was told by police that she would be arrested if she did not stop praying. This is the type of callous response one can expect from those holding a secular worldview. This incident and the attack upon a Christian school in Michigan is a clear display of the cultural divide that is underway in the United States.

In Punished with Poverty, several maps of the U.S.A. illustrate how different the South and the North are when it comes to church attendance, charitable giving, and views on traditional Christian morality. The point is simply this: The South is different from the rest of America. In an interview with Leonard Nimoy, aka Mr. Spock, Nimoy noted that one concern that Hollywood had about his character was that the people in the "Bible Belt, you know in the South" would see Mr. Spock as looking too much like the Devil. Even if we Southerners don't view ourselves as being different from the rest of the U.S., "those people" do view us as different. Reflecting upon this difference, I would agree with the French vive la difference.

Rekilling Lincoln:

1. Lincoln's America created Obama's America
2. Lincoln, America's first Imperial (but not last) President
3. Enslaving freemen is Lincoln's greatest legacy
4. In Lincoln's America, government always trumps liberty
5. Northerners felt the heavy hand of Lincoln's tyranny
6. Lincoln's wife and friends never viewed Lincoln as a Christian

Lincoln and the Republicans created the Federal Empire—it is our duty to replace it with a government fit for a Free people!
